During the spring/summer of 2008, SEE completed a search of US public and private school websites that included references to academic integrity/honesty/cheating and/or honor codes or pledges. We specifically searched for schools that represented a broad geographic diversity. There were 93 school websites discovered, which were ultimately sorted down to 33 websites (recognized below) of schools that included definitions of cheating and published integrity policies and/or codes supporting integrity. Of these 33 schools, 19 were public schools and 14 were private schools from a total of 16 states. We created an outline of a comprehensive academic integrity policy from a review of these 33 schools. We obtained permission from 14 school administrators (bold text in table below) from nine states to include policy narrative or themes and cite their websites to create SEE's synthesis of an academic integrity policy. No single school website contained all of the elements of this policy and several schools may have contributed concepts to individual themes that were synthesized and paraphrased in this document. Michael Pirhalla served as SEE's intern to complete much of the research to identify these schools.
